A Practical Guide

Second Edition

Sophie Laws Coram, Caroline Harper, Nicola Jones both at Overseas Development Institute and Rachel Marcus Independent Researcher

“This book has become the 'go to' text for practitioners, students and researchers alike. Whether one is seeking a quick definition or brief explanation of a subject, or needing a more detailed guide to how to go about doing research for development, this book is quite simply indispensable.”

- David Lewis, Professor of Social Policy and Development, London School of Economics & Political Science

“Undoubtedly the best guide to commissioning and managing research for development that we have. The authors are to be congratulated for the work they have put into updating the text and keeping it relevant to the ever-changing demands of development research, and for their contribution to our common goal of making the world a better place.”

- Duncan Green, Senior Strategic Adviser, Oxfam

Research for Development offers a comprehensive guide to commissioning, managing and undertaking research in development work. It serves both as a practical reference manual and an indispensable learning tool.

Divided into three parts, the book provides a complete overview of the research process spanning:

- the uses, planning and management of research
- reviewing existing evidence
- learning development research skills
- choosing research methods
- undertaking ethical research
- writing an effective research report
- promoting research uptake and assessing research
- monitoring and evaluation

This fully revised second edition also includes a new section on how to use the internet for research. Its 16 chapters are enriched by a variety of international case studies, checklists of key points, learning exercises, helpful references to further reading and engaging illustrations. The book also includes a detailed glossary of terms.

Drawing on considerable hands-on experience, Research for Development is an ideal practical companion for students of development studies and public policy, as well as practitioners in the field.
